Bcenter's “Hive of Hope” for Stroke Survivors Has A New Home

Winter Park Business Provides A Matching Gift

Orlando, FL - November 10, 2015 - The Bcenter, a nonprofit with a mission to educate, empower and bring hope to stroke survivors, now has a place to call home for its monthly group gatherings known as the Hive of Hope. Bcenter makes use of the new larger meeting space, located in the Winter Park Civic Center, 1050 W. Morse Blvd., Winter Park, Florida 32789 starting January 1, 2016.

A private donor provided the initial gift and The Closing Agent / Barry Miller Law in Winter Park stepped up to match the contribution, meeting the financial goal to pay rent in the new location for a year. “The Bcenter is so grateful for this generous gift of support,” says Valerie Greene, founder and CEO of Bcenter. “The Winter Park Hive of Hope will become a model for stroke survivors around the country, empowering them to excel into more than they ever thought was possible.”

Spokesperson for The Closing Agent / Barry Miller Law, Darryll Clark, says “Our company has a proud history of helping worthy nonprofit organizations in the community. We are thrilled to support the Bcenter and assist with expanding programs to meet the group’s needs.” The Bcenter, headquartered in Winter Park, reaches stroke survivors throughout the world.

The Winter Park Hive of Hope is part of Bcenter’s outreach program and is a featured wellness resource for individuals seeking stroke-recovery information. The new larger space will accommodate more attendees, a stage for cultural performances, art therapy and special entertainment. Environment and expression are critical components to stroke recovery, proving that stroke recovery is both strong and growing.

About Bcenter: Bcenter, a division of its parent company Global Stroke Resource, Inc., is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization with a mission to empower, educate and light the path to recovery for stroke survivors and families. Bcenter is dedicated to providing treatment resources, hope and direction.
